

Training Update- Autumn Term 2011

Spotlight on..... Choking

Every day in the UK around 40 children under 5 are taken to hospital after choking and food is the most likely cause*. Since the death of a 2 yr old in a UK nursery there has been an increased focus on dealing with a choking emergency. Whilst there were many factors that contributed to the death in that particular case, including incorrect cutting-up of food, communication issues & ambulance delay, it has been suggested that many school staff are unaware of how to effectively deal with a choking incident. At Fane Ltd we have state of the art equipment that allows delegates on our courses to safely practice back slaps and abdominal thrusts to ensure that they as effective as possible & staff are best equipped to deal with a potential choking emergency

First Aid Guidance for Schools

We are often contacted by staff who are unsure of the first aider requirements for their school. The HSE issues guidance for First Aid provision for staff and adult visitors. Unfortunately there is no simple answer! The number of first aiders required (and the level of training they receive) for your school depends on the level of risk and number of staff on each site, visitors /parents should also be taken into consideration. All First Aiders must have a current and valid certificate from an HSE Approved Training Organisation , the certificate must be renewed every 3 yrs with annual updates recommended.

In addition, Ofsted require that sufficient suitably trained Paediatric First Aiders are available in school or on outings whenever children are present to ensure their safety.

Fane Ltd offer the following courses to help you meet their requirements

HSE Approved Emergency First Aid at Work (6hrs)

We now offer a sessional rate of £350 per course for up to 12 staff (£29 each)
(ex vat)

OCN Endorsed Paediatric First Aid (12hrs)

£75 per delegate (min 6) or group rate of £750 for up to 12 delegates (£62.50 each)
(ex vat)

All courses can be held on your premises or ours

(Prices include all course materials, text book, examination and certificate costs)
